Coaches Corner

After a hiatus for the past season the Roadrunner Review is back. In case you have not heard, Coach Mike Dunlap last year left Metro State to become an assistant coach with the Denver Nuggets. When that happened I was promoted to Interim Head Coach. Being short on staff due to the timing of the changes forced us to simplify our workload. Now that we are back to a complete staff we will continue to send out the Roadrunner Review.

This past season we continued the tradition of Metro State Basketball with having good players and a successful season on and off the court. I want to take this opportunity to thank Coach Dunlap for the amount of time and energy he has invested into me over the past 17 years. The transition would not have been as successful without the lessons that were taught to us as a staff throughout the years. Coach Dunlap not only develops quality basketball players he also develops coaches. His insight and passion for raising young coaches teaching them how the game should be taught and how to develop a whole basketball program is something for which I am truly grateful.

Our goal is to have four publications throughout the upcoming season to keep you updated on our program and to include coaching materials. A bar has been set very high and we are striving each day to keep that standard. Thanks for your continued support of Metro State Basketball.

Go Runners!
